

01/15/2021

Hosts react differently to infection

Ilse Jacobsen and colleagues publish in Frontiers in Immunology

Whole blood models show different host responses to the same pathogen

Whole blood models can help elucidate the interactions between host and pathogen. The human whole blood model has been used for such studies. Now, Prof. Jacobsen and her colleagues also established the mouse whole blood model and observed different responses to the same pathogen.

Read more in the original publication.

Send us your new publications to share them with the InfectoOptics community: sina.gerbach@leibniz-hki.de