

12/31/2019

Sepsis and Infection

Art exhibition about Sepsis at the Jena University Hospital

Every year, Jena organizations and institutions from research and medicine jointly organize local activities on World Sepsis Day on September 13. For some years now, one focus of efforts has been on literally "putting sepsis in the picture". With the 2019 exhibition, the series is dedicated to various graphic approaches to the topic of sepsis and infection. The main aim is to make sepsis better known and to inform people about this disease. And how could this be better than with pictures? Images that touch us, remain in our minds, tell us stories and take us a piece into them.

More information